Required Marihuana Testing Points

Points in the supply chain where product must be tested before sale

The purpose of this bulletin is to inform the public and potential medical marihuana licensees of the Bureau of Medical Marihuana Regulation's intentions regarding testing of marihuana and marihuana-infused products. This bulletin is only for advisory purposes and is subject to change.

The Bureau intends to require testing of marihuana and marihuana-infused products at the following two points in the supply chain:

- After harvest: Harvested marihuana must pass required tests before it is transferred from a grower to a processor or a provisioning center.
- After processing: Marihuana and marihuana-infused products in their final state must pass required tests before they are transferred from a processor to a provisioning center.

Facilities may choose to test their products at additional points in the supply chain.

More information regarding marihuana testing:

- The test results will be recorded in the statewide monitoring system by the licensed safety compliance facility
- The grower or processor that provided the test sample will be able to view the testing results in the statewide monitoring system once they have been recorded
- A caregiver may choose to have his or her product tested by a licensed safety compliance facility, but those tests will not be recorded or tracked in the statewide monitoring system

Licensed provisioning centers can sell or transfer marihuana to a registered qualifying patient or registered primary caregiver only after it has been tested and bears the label required for retail sale.

This bulletin does not constitute legal advice and is subject to change. It is intended to be advisory only, in anticipation of the Department of Licensing and Regulatory Affairs' promulgation of emergency rules consistent with statutory requirements. Potential licensees are encouraged to
